History Committee of the French National Institute of Public Health and Medical Research

Created in January 2017, the Inserm History Committee partly reflects the move in recent decades to rebuild, preserve, and demonstrate the value of Inserm's heritage.

Pascal GRISET, Chairman of the History Committee, is Professor at Sorbonne University, co-author of At the Heart of Life published on Inserm's 50th anniversary, and a specialist on the history of innovation and major scientific institutions.

Missions and activities

One of the highest Committee's priorities is to lead studies to make apparent the role and contribution of Inserm in the French biological, medical, and health-care research, also in the international context.

The committee also promotes and organizes, in collaboration with Inserm's partners (scientific, cultural, and socioeconomic bodies) some events dedicated to the history of Inserm and, more widely, the history of medical and health care research. The committee aims to bring together organizations working in related and/or complementary fields, and to develop collaborative projects.

Annual meetings and events

Annual meetings are organized, which gathers French and International experts from one specific domain to explore the past, present and future of research in this area. The 3rd Annual Meeting "From the Brain to Neurosciences: Itineraries over the longue durée" will be held at the Sorbonne, the 22nd January 2020.

Grants

Every year, the History Committee offers a number of grants to support some students – mostly in Master degrees - interested in the history of Public Health and biomedical research.

Publication

The first issue of the Committee's journal Les Cahiers du Comité pour l'histoire is to be published on January 2020 on iPubli. It will gather some papers from the second annual meeting which was dedicated to the history of epidemiology from 19th century to present.
